In the report of the fire, water and light committee to the town council Monday night it was recommended that an arc light be placed on Barnett avenue at the intersection of Day and Matthias streets. This is a place in which a light has been very badly needed. The report was adopted and the light will no doubt be in place before October 1st.

A meeting of the directors of the Agricultural Society was held in Mobley's hall last Friday afternoon for the purpose of further revising the prize list. The last hog came in for a full share in the discussion and it was decided to continue to leave the last breed out of the prize list for this year, though the friends of these breeds have signified their intention of making still another effort for recognition in the forthcoming prize list.

The semi-annual notice for scavenging fees have been sent out, and now a considerable number of people seem to think they would rather pay the cost of scavenging out of the general funds of the town than by special tax. The originator of the present scheme claims it is a much more equitable way. The town should by all means be made clean and kept clean, let the necessary cost be what it may. Every plan previously tried has proved a failure. If the present plan accomplishes the cleaning (and we believe even the most prejudiced must admit that it has made a good showing in this line) it is to be hoped that it will be a success otherwise.

CHAPTER VI.

At the next day Chilote moved in a fever of excitement. Not with hope one moment, cold with fear the next, he rushed with restless energy into every task that presented itself, only to stop it as speedily. Twice during the morning he drove to the entrance of Clifford's inn, but each time his courage failed him and he returned to Grosvenor square to learn that the expected message from Loder had not come.

It was a worrisome condition of mind, but at worst it was scarcely more than an exaggeration of what his state had been for months and made but little obvious difference in his bearing or manner.

In the afternoon he took his place in the house, but, though it was his first appearance since his failure of two days ago, he drew but small personal notice. When he chanced his manner could reveal advances with extreme effect, and of late men had been prone to draw away from him.

In one of the lobbies he encountered Fraide surrounded by a group of friends. With his usual fervor he would have passed on, but moving away from his party he did not see that he was always courted by Chilote, as the husband of his ward and godchild.

"Better, Chilote," he said, holding out his hand. At the sound of the low, rather formal tones, so characteristic of the old statesman, a hundred memories rose to Chilote's mind: a hundred hours distasteful in the living and unbearable in the recollection, and with them the new flash of hope, the new possibility of freedom. In a sudden rush of confidence he turned to his leader.

"I believe I've found a remedy for my nerves," he said. "I believe I'm going to be a new man." He laughed with a touch of excitement.

Fraide pressed his fingers kindly. "That's right," he said. "That is right. I called at Grosvenor square this morning, but I've told me your illness of the other day was not serious. She was very busy this morning. She could only spare me a quarter of an hour. She is indefatigable over the affairs of her prospects, Chilote. You owe her a large debt. A popular wife means a great debt to a politician."

The steady eye of his companion distributed Chilote.

"He drew away his hand. "He is unique," he said vaguely. "Fraide smiled. "That is right," he said again. "Admiration is too largely excluded from modern marriages."

And with a courteous excuse he re-joined his friends.

It was dinner time before Chilote could desert the house, but the moment departure was possible he hurried to Grosvenor square.

As he entered the house the hall was empty. He swore irritably under his breath and pressed the nearest bell. Since his momentary exaltation in Fraide's presence his spirits had steadily fallen until now they hung at the lowest ebb.

As he waited in unbecoming impatience for an answer to his summons he caught sight of his man Allsopp at the head of the stairs.

"Come here!" he called, pleased to find some one upon whom to vent his irritation. "Has that wire come for me?"

"No, sir. I inquired five minutes back."

"Inquire again."

"Yes, sir," Allsopp disappeared.

A second later after his disappearance the bell of the hall door whizzed loudly.

Chilote started. All sudden sounds, like all strong lights, affected him. He half moved to the door, then stopped himself with a short gasp.

At the same instant Allsopp reappeared. Chilote turned on him excitedly.

"What the devil's the meaning of this?" he said. "A battery of servants in the house and nobody to open the hall door?"

"Crash is coming directly, sir. He only left the hall to ask Jeffrey."

Chilote turned. "Confound Crash!" he exclaimed. "Go and open the door yourself."

Allsopp hesitated, his dignity struggling with his obedience. As he waited the bell sounded again.

"Did you hear me?" Chilote said.

"Yes, sir," Allsopp crossed the hall. As the door was opened Chilote passed his handkerchief from one hand to the other in the tension of hope and fear, then as the sound of a telephone ring reached his ears he let the handkerchief drop to the ground.

Allsopp took the yellow envelope and carried it to his master.

"A telegram, sir," he said. "And the boy wishes to know if there is an answer." Picking up Chilote's handkerchief, he turned aside with elaborate dignity.

Chilote's hands were so unsteady that he could scarcely insert his finger under the flap of the envelope. Tearing off a corner, he viewed the awaiting card and smoothed out the pink paper.

"You want to see Chilote?" said, with unusual decision. "I told you you wished to see him, and I read money. Money isn't the rock you'll split over."

"Then you think I'll split over some rock?" But the beyond the question he got to business again. "You'll risk my signature?"

Chilote nodded.

"Night!" Now, item two. Loder counted on his fingers. "I must know the names and faces of your own friends as far as I can. Your own friends don't count. Only I'm sure you will be adamant." He laughed again pleasantly. "But the men are essential—the backbone of the whole business."

"I have no men friends. I don't trust the idea of friendship."

"Acquaintances, then."

"Acquaintances, then," he said. "I think a reputation for shrewdness that will carry you anywhere. They tell me I can look through the most substantial man in the house as if he were glass, though I may have lunched with him the same day."

Loder smiled. "By Jove," he exclaimed. "Fate must have been constructing this before either of us was born. It's deplorable ridiculous. But must know your colleagues, even if it's only to cut them. You'll have to take me to 'em."

"Impossible."

"Not at all!—Again the tone of authority fell to Loder. "I can pull my hat over my eyes and turn up my coat collar. Nobody will notice me. We can choose the fall of the afternoon. I promise you I'll be all right."

"Suppose the likeness should leak out? It's a risk."

Loder laughed confidently. "Tush, man. Risk is the salt of life. I must see you at your post, and I must see the men you work with." He rose, walked across the room and took his pipe from the rack. "When I go for a thing I go to get it, and I go to get it."

"He added as he opened his tobacco jar."

"His pipe filled, he resumed his seat, resting his elbow on the table in an unconscious imitation of Chilote."

"Got a match?" he said laconically, holding out his hand.

In response Chilote drew his match box from his pocket and struck a light. As their hands touched an exclamation escaped him.

"By Jove!" he said, with a fresh mixture of disappointment and surprise. "I hadn't noticed that." His eyes were fixed in anxious interest on Loder's hand.

Loder, following his glance, smiled. "Odd that we should both have overlooked it. It cleans against my mind. It's rather an ugly scar." He lifted his hand till the light fell more fully on it. Above the second joint of the third finger ran a jagged furrow, the reminder of a wound that had healed but left the bone.

Chilote leaped forward. "How did you come by it?" he asked, his shoulders raised.

"The result is present day enough. It's a reminder, very annoying."

Loder, still looking at his hand, didn't seem to hear. "There's only one thing to be done," he said. "I wish we were in the theatre, where the other hand, 'Two rings ought to cover it.' He made a speculative movement with the stem of his pipe.

Chilote looked in a startled and disturbed. "I detect rings. I never wear rings."

INK THAT NEVER DRIES.

Case Used in Handling Fine Engravings and Engraving.

"One of the first things we have to impress upon newcomers in this business is the importance of ink."

"To take the utmost care in handling prints for the simple reason that the ink used in printing engravings and other fine work dries."

"Of all the men whose works in this line we handle it can be safely said that on the prints of only two of them."

"An expert, whether he be a professional or amateur collector, can tell at a glance that a print has had another one pulled across it, for to his accustomed eye the telltale marks of the ink having been drawn across a blank space on the paper are as clear as day."

"But what was that you thought? Why are you never honest—even with yourself?"

"Chilote drew his chair closer to the table. He did not attend to the other's remark, but his fingers strayed to his waistcoat pocket and fumbled there."

"Loder saw the gesture. 'Look here,' he said, 'you are oversteering yourself. The affair of the pay isn't pressing. We'll shelve it to another night. You are a collector, I know. I do feel a bit fagged. If I may, I'll have that ink pulled across it, for to his accustomed eye the telltale marks of the ink having been drawn across a blank space on the paper are as clear as day.'

RAISING CHURCH FUNDS.

The Kaffir Mix in a Lot of Fun With Their Generosity.

The gentle Kaffir when he does become Christianized has his own ideas of the best way of raising funds for the support of the "cause."

On the subject of a native meeting held here by a missionary it was said that the Kaffir was very generous. Although of a rough and tumble character, is distinctly productive of ways and means."

"Recently I attended a native tea meeting, at which more than £12 was raised by this very poor congregation. Their way of doing it was characteristic and amusing. They paid 2 shillings at dinner to the table. The man then usually would pay 5s. 6d. for leave to sit down again. There was a special table at which six could sit, paying an extra shilling each for the privilege. They had just got seated when a man paid 7 shillings to clear the table. The Kaffir then paid 5 shillings to sit on, and so it went on. They arrange all this themselves, and this is their way of giving to the cause. One man had a tin of soap, and he would pay 2 shillings to pour it over another man's head who had got himself up well in a large coat, etc.; this man paid 3 shillings to be the first man to get up and do it, the first man 5 shillings to do it, and the other 5 shillings to do it, and, oh, the laughter and the merriment!"

HEALTH NOTES
FOR JUNE.

CANADA'S LOVE FOR BRITAIN.

(From Canadian Poets.)
We love those little lonely isles,
Which nestle in the sea.

We love their towers and bulwarks
grand,
Their glorious minstrelsy.

We love old England's hoary dells,
Proud Scotia's mountains hoar,
Sweet Erin's fields of "living green,"
Their history and their lore.

Dear Avon's banks where "free to roam"
Sweet songs, sang glorious "Will,"
Ye banks and braes of bonny Doon
Where "Robt." ghost wanders still.

Where "Irish Nora's eyes grow dim,"
When Moore's sweet songs of love,
Suffuse their mystic influence round,
Like incense from above.

The cities of "Old Father Thames," Whence wealth and learning flow,
The silver Port of "Dundee's" towers,
Their glamor and their glow.

The ancient hills of proud Argyll,
Loch Katrine's rugged shore,
Where Scott, writ sweet, of love and hate,
To charm us evermore.

Where angry Scott, in ancient kiln,
Descended from the North,
With slogan and warlike shout
To drive the Southern forth.

When tartan'd clans, fierce battle made,
With bucker and claymore;
Where Melrose and her mystic light
Amidst the clash of war.

In thought we fly to Flodden Field
Where Scotia's noblest fell,
'Gainst serried ranks of the gallant South,
As ancient legends tell.

We glory in Great Britain's fame,
Her sons and daughters fair,
Her mighty strength, her vast renown, And her protecting care.

So we, "The Maple Leaf Forever,"
With loyal voices sing,
In union with each patriotic song,
"God Save our Gracious King."

CANADIAN INDIANS.

Red Men Come Miles to See a Circus Display.

Canadian Indians are in some respect, more interesting than those in the United States, due partly to the fact that in sparsely settled parts of Canada, the Indian is still in his dress and customs. They have always been peaceful on account of the Mounted Police.

When in the early days taught the Indians to consider them as friends. As a result of this treatment there has been no Indian massacre, and the red men come into towns decked in gay apparel and take their place with trader and trader as much as any of the white brethren.

The Canadian Indians are particularly fond of circuses and on circus day they may be seen on the streets, some on horseback, some on foot, and some on Indian ponies.

Usually the braves are dressed in a combination of store clothes and Indian dress, and the cost is thrown an expensive but dirty Indian blanket, around the neck is a red and yellow striped bandana, and the hair is worn in two long braids, the ends of which are lightened by twisting in smoky fat, and in this region sell for a few cents each.

These braves are always smoking a pipe, and some have a pipe in their mouth and at others whittled from a hard wood.

Down on the street corners, squating on the curbings, are the squaws,
old and young, wearing all careless and usually holding in their hands a little papoose, which is a small child, sometimes a bear skin
as the protection against the Indians seem dumfounded by the street parade, and some of the braves are trading from the reservation, many miles away, with the air of those who have witnessed the sight of their lives.

Sheepdog trials are becoming popular in Canada, and there is some call for them in the neighborhood of New York. But the East can hardly be said to be a sheep country, and where there are no sheep there can be little use for working sheepdogs. Sheep-dogs are looked upon as a sort of national pastime or game in Wales and Australia, and to watch the dogs work to recognize the marvelous intelligence of these aids to shepherds.

The great Toronto Show or Fair is now the gathering place of the sheep-dog owners, and the entertainment that their dogs have given have been greatly appreciated. Major G. M. Caruhan is the chief supporter of the trials near New York, and his dogs have given very good exhibitions.

The use of these competitions are manifold. They point to the dog as utility animal for man, and of what service he is particularly to the shepherd. In the great paddocks of Australia and on the mountains of Wales and Scotland the dog can be seen with a hundred men; he is an independent animal. Again these trials give the owner an opportunity to show to intelligence of a dog, and it is to be hoped they will treat him accordingly.

SARAH MAXWELL AT REST.

Last week the remains of Miss Sarah Maxwell, who perished in the Hochelega school fire, Montreal, were laid in their final resting-place. The funeral was attended by relatives and the deceased, members of the Hochelega school staff, and several of the parents of the children who lost their lives in the flames. Rev. Dr. Symonds conducted the service at the graveside. The grave was surrounded by the mounds of the fifteen pupils
who were buried on Saturday.

A New Microbe

The list of microbes continues to grow steadily. That of whooping cough must now be added to the list. Dr. Albert Weichmann, of the Wilhelm hospital, the other night spoke on the subject, before the Vienna Medical society, and declared that he had discovered the specific agent that caused the complaint. There had for some time been a suspicion that a kind of bacillus was at the bottom, but Dr. Albert felt himself able to assert that the whooping cough bacillus was identical with that of influenza. The doctor was able to give a great deal of interesting details of his experiments and their results, which seem to be on scrupulous lines with work done by Drs. Bordet and Gengon, of the Brussels Pasteur Institute.

A MOTHER'S GRATITUDE.

Mrs. V. Cheonet, of St. Benoit, Quebec, writes as follows: "It is with feelings of the deepest gratitude that I write to tell you what Baby's Own Tablets have done for my baby.
When I began giving him the Tablets
he was so thin and wasted that he looked like a skeleton. His digestion was poor, he was irritable and cried day and night. I got a box of Baby's Own Tablets and from the first they did him a great deal of good. His food digested better; his sweats worked regularly; his sleep was of quietude and narcotic. He began to grow fat. I got another box and am happy to say before they were all used he was in perfect health and is now a plump rugged child. I keep a box of Tablets in the house and would advise other mothers to do the same." The above is a fair sample of hundreds of letters that come from all parts of Canada praising Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets cure all the minor ills of babies
and young children, and are absolutely safe, as they do not contain one particle of opiate or narcotic. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CARRIED THEIR BEDS.

When Straw Ticks Were Sold to Railroad Travelers.

An old man approached the Pullman office window.

"A lover to St. Louis," he said, displaying his transportation.

The little red slip was stamped and handed to him.

The old man stood at the window a moment looking at the clock.

"Twenty-five years ago," he said, "I bought a berth from Kansas City to California. My bed cost me 75 cents."

The clerk looked astounded.

"You're mistaken, I think," replied
the ticket seller. "Berths are as cheap
now as they ever were."

"No," said the traveler, "they are not. They are costlier, and I'll tell you why. Travel nowadays is different.
When I went to California then it cost 75 cents for a straw tick. I bought it on this street right opposite the depot.

"I don't remember what I paid for my place in the car. But in reality my bed cost me just 75 cents. There used to be a sign on one of those little buildings over there which said:

"Get your straw beds here—50 and 75 cents."

"Twenty-five years ago that meant luxurious traveling. There were silks and curtains to put down over your seat and you provided your own bedding. You took your sheets if you wanted them at all and your own blankets. Kansas City was looked up on as the supplying point for all western travelers. Those men who owned the straw and the ticks in that room
across on the avenue did a flourishing business."

L. S. Banks, general ticket agent at the depot, said that probably 10,000 straw ticks were sold to travelers from that room on Union avenue. "Ticks
were a sort of luxury," he said, "twenty-five or thirty years ago. They were in demand too. The majority of persons who traveled to California did not use the sleeping cars."—Kansas City

LADY GODIVA'S FILLS.

The idea of clothing Lady Godiva
in the forthcoming Croydon pageant has been abandoned. The advocates of the treacherous Lady Godiva have been and apart from some slight concessions to the proprietors her ladyship
will ride the streets in the altogether.

The concessions will take the form of black tights and some apparently incidental draperies. The role is likely to be filled by La Mille, a stately person, who has expressed her willingness to undertake it on assurance that her appearance will be purely for a charitable object.

The Mayor of Coventry, who opposed the decision, is now described as the most silent man in the city. He is rather scared by the turn events have taken. He has long been ruffled by the daily arrival of applications from lovely ladies, who have sent their photographs and measurements, recommending themselves, and he now has a fine collection of beauties.

WIFE MUST YIELD.

London Magistrate's View of Domestic Felony.

A remark by Magistrate Fordham during the hearing of a case in the North London Police Court, to the effect that a woman ought to allow her husband to revise her visiting list,
has led to a burning controversy,
rushing into which another magistrate, endorsing Mr. Fordham, says:

"In almost every case of domestic trouble in my court the cause may be found in the husband's submission to his wife. This is a perversion of the natural order of things. Many years' experience has taught me that the Old Testament order is the safest for human happiness. The wife must be subject to her husband, even where the husband is unworthy of respect and veneration. She must yield to him on all points. Otherwise there will be trouble sooner or later. It is the fashion to talk about mutual regard and absolute equality, but it rarely works in practice. If the woman was not prepared to honor and obey her husband she ought not to have married him."

A prominent London clergyman
concurs mainly in this view, but advocates a mutual understanding concerning men whom the wife is entitled to receive.

A lady in charge of the headquarters of the suffragettes emphatically disputed the magistrate's opinion.
She upheld absolute equality between wife and husband. She said:

"The only arrangement is a mutual one. The marriage service, with its love, honor and obey, is an anachronism. The wife is entitled to as much liberty as the husband."

It is noteworthy that the expression of opinion on the subject are reluctant to divulge their names.

King's Plate on a Journey.

The King's gold plate, which is worth intrinsically more than $50,000, will make several journeys between Windsor and London this summer, when there will be an exceptional number of state languets to visit the king at Buckingham Palace.

The royal treasure is kept in strong rooms at Windsor Castle behind locks
that are regarded as absolutely burlar proof. "When the plate is removed to London, it is packed in express wagons, bearing the royal cipher,
and guarded by a number of detectives.

These walk unobtrusively on each side of the wagons, and to the casual observer the wagons are in charge of the drivers only. But they are accompanied every yard of the way between the two palaces by a strong household of detectives, who never let the precious freight out of his sight during the transit.

Laurier Praises Both.

Says the Late General Will Deserves His Triumph.

The following extracts are taken from a letter from Sir Wilfrid Laurier
written to a friend by Montreal:

"Amongst all the Colonial Prime Ministers, General Botha attracted the most attention here. He was indeed not getting over the fact that the English are a people of generous instincts. I am sure that in his book, entitled 'History of Our Times,' notes the fact that at the coronation of Queen Victoria the popular hero was Marshal Soult, the special Ambassador sent by the French Emperor to the coronation of this universal sympathy was in the fact that he had so valiantly fought in the Crimea. It is the same with Botha. The English give him credit for the courage and success which characterized his action against their armies in the Transvaal."

In fact, we must all recognize that Botha well deserves the triumph which he has scored on a far different field. His language is frank, loyal and unassuming. He belonged to the Liberal party in the Transvaal, commanded by Joubert and opposed to Krugger. If the advice of this party had been followed there would have been no war. However, having been decided upon, he threw himself
into the fight with all possible valor,
and he has been the moving spirit of the conflict, but the most successful general, and was the last to lay down his arms. As a matter of fact, he only consented to sign a treaty of peace when he had obtained sufficient ammunition to his fellow-countrymen the full enjoyment of British institutions.

"We have, in fact, become very friendly, and during the progress of the conference, I have had his cordial support all points."

A little "lily" boy died in the suburbs

looked out of the window in the morning and saw numberless dandelions on the lawns.

Taken at His Word.

"No," growled the chronic kicker, "I don't see why I can't have as much as my neighbor has. It isn't right."

"Very well," replied a passing miscanthrope, "one of your neighbors has the qualities I'm afraid you'll stand up at once."

The Return Home of Canadians.

Statistics of the present immigration into Canada show that large numbers of Canadians who originally went to the United States are returning to their native land, and next in numbers to the native-born are the Scotch, many of whom settled in Canada in the early days. The growth of the Canadian West is indicated by the fact that, while in 1887, it was represented by only four members, the new provinces now send twenty-seven members to Parliament—out of a total of two hundred and thirteen in the legislature, this is a fair showing for the new districts.—Joe Mitchell Chapple in the National Magazine for August.

Apparently the Edmonton Fair did not meet with approbation from all quarters, but why should the Calgary contemporaries gloat over the matter so. Are they doing the Province any good by such work. Perhaps after all their view is so restricted that unless the new comer locates somewhere in the windy streak he cannot prosper. The north seems to be a blighted curse to some of our southern friends in the Province. It is about time such nagging was given up. Alberta is great enough for all. The south can grow angus, the north tomatoes and bananas, while the centre is famous for its fat stock and dairying; so there be done with your bickering and childish jealousy.—Fonoka Herald.

An Important Suggestion.

The beef commissioners are steadily gathering much valuable evidence and gaining information that will assist them in outlining some plan or plans that we trust will prove beneficial to the interest of Western stock growers. Naturally the names of P. Burns and Gordon Ironsides and Fares are frequently mentioned.

Mr. C. B. Phillips, J. P., of Wetaskiwin, made a suggestion that is worthy of looking into. He stated that Southern Alberta ranchers would find it profitable to ship a lot of their cattle north, as soon as possible after harvest, and have their grain fed. It would, he claimed, be beneficial in several ways. First, grain in the north is cheap, which means a poor market, and the plan mentioned would profitably utilize a large amount of the surplus grain. Second, it would spread the selling period of beaves, which would add to fall prices of grass fed cattle. Third, it would be the means of placing more grain finished cattle on our export markets; and fourth, it would allow railroads to give a better service during the fall and early winter months.

There is sufficient in this suggestion to cause us to give it considerable attention. Grain feeding should be encouraged, and, further, any good plan that will allow of greater spread in dates of beef shipments should be carefully considered.—Farm and Ranch Review.

I'll stop your pain free. To show you first—before you spend a penny—what my Pink Pain Tablets can do, I will mail you free, a trial package of them—Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets. Neuralgia, headache, toothache, period pain, etc., are due alone to blood congestion. Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets simply kill pain by coaxing away the unnatural blood pressure. That is all. Address Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Sold by all dealers.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either dyspepsia, the heart or the kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, sleeplessness. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Japanese Limit Emigration.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—It is understood here that the Japanese government has under consideration the further limitation of Japanese emigration, and as a means to this end, in pursuance of its own national policy, welcomes the proposed limitation of immigration of Japanese into this country. The present arrangement is that not more than one passport per month would be issued for each of the forty districts of Japan to those wishing to emigrate to Canada. This number has not been reached. However, the difficulty was foreseen that the large immigration to Canada from Honolulu includes Japanese who were United States citizens and over whom Japan has no control. To obviate this difficulty an arrangement will have to be made with the United States government.

Frenchman Fell 180 Feet.

Quebec, July 30.—To fall 180 feet and still live was the remarkable experience of Joseph Grau, an old country Frenchman, who has been resident in Quebec for three months. Grau was seen climbing the Quebec bridge and walked out to the end of the super-structure. In attempting to retrace his steps he missed his footing and fell from the dizzy height into the water below. He landed on his side with terrific force, but was quickly extricated and a doctor summoned, when it was found that the limit of his injuries was a fractured rib. He was placed in the Hotel Dieu, where he is now resting comfortably.

Piles get quick and certain relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Please note it is made alone for Piles, and its action is positive and certain. Itching, painful, protruding or blind piles disappear like magic by its use. Large nickel-capped glass jars 50 cents. Sold by all dealers.

"Worms on Ice".

Tacoma, Wash., July 30.—In the ascent of Mount Rainier, Prof. John B. Platt, of this city, and Prof. Cowles and a scientific party from Chicago discovered in the ice of Uralia glacier millions of small worms. The discovery astonished the scientists, who could hardly believe their eyes until they had cut into the hard ice and removed some of the worms for microscopic examination. The worms, which are about an inch in length and each the size of a hair, presented a wriggling, squirming mass in the solid ice. To place the ice was almost black with them.

Child Played With Matches.

Indian Head, Sask., July 30.—A fatal case occurred at Katepew this afternoon on the farm of Ernest Skinner. Little Magdalene Brabant, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. Skinner's hired man was playing with matches last evening, and set fire to her clothing. Before the flames could be extinguished the little girl was horribly burned. Dr. Hunt was sent for, but the poor little creature only lived till 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of dyspepsia, heartburn, and indigestion as real diseases, yet they are but symptoms of a certain speed. Here picture—nothing else. It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop's Restorative. With out that original and higher vital principle, no such lasting accomplishment were prior to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sleeplessness, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

His Brides on One Train. In some countries June is the month sacred to the wedding bells. In Alberta it is Cupid his to work the year round and takes no holidays. In the north country this is a busy season for the married maker. It is a pretty dull day when at least one bridal party does not make life a little more interesting on the train from the north. Last night there were six brides, and it may be added, though of course it is of less importance, six husbands of brides on the train from the north. Three of the brides came on at Innisfail, two at Strathcona and the other at Didsbury. Conductor Chamberlain was in charge of the train, and succeeded in bringing to Calgary without accident—Albertan. It Imparts Strength. Just think of the enormous strength giving power Ferrozene possesses—consider what it did for H. V. Potter, well known in Kingston, "I was subject to spells of dizziness. For eight months I had intense pain in my right side between the shoulders. I was almost incurable with weakness and lack of vigor. Often I scarcely ate any breakfast and felt miserable all day. Nervous, easily excited, troubled with heart weakness. I was in bed shape. Ferrozene restored and nourished me back to health in short order." Whatever your weakness may be Ferrozene will cure. Price 50c per box at all dealers.

Find $100 Nuggets. Vancouver, Aug. 7.—The latest gold mining romance comes from Spruce Creek, Atlin, where Jack Prescott, an old time miner, found several hundred dollar nuggets in an abandoned pile of tailings. Evidently they had been washed down in a day's sluicing and being too large to be caught on the riffle had drifted to the waste, where they lay for years. The incident has its humorous side. Miners are now initiating Prescott, prospecting with a bandaged eye, Prescott having but the sight of one.

When Children are Sick They eat something that disagrees, catch cold, have cramps or colic. If there is pain just apply Nerville's—it's good to rub on, and for the inside it's most comforting. Effective and pleasant, you can't find a household panacea to equal Nerville's. Used with satisfaction for half a century and in better demand every day because it does stop pain, ease suffering and cure the thousand and one ills that constantly arise in the family. Large bottles at all dealers for 25c.

Horrible Murder of Nurse. Victoria, B. C. July 21.—With eyes staring from her head, her face black from strangulation, the body of Jane Lay, a trained nurse, who left Friday to attend a patient a few miles in the country, was found on the beach at Glover Point yesterday afternoon. It is quite evident that the girl was murdered, but the authorities have not the slightest clue as to the perpetrator or the motive of the crime. The girl's purse, containing $5.00 was found near the body.

It Creeps Like a Serpent. Steals through the system like a thief in the night. That's how catarrh acts. Don't trifle with such a scourge. Don't experiment with a doubtful treatment. Time and experience prove that Catarrh-ozone does cure, that it gives quick relief and so thoroughly destroys the disease, that it dies forever.

Get Catarrh-ozone in the first place. you are assured. In 25c and $1.00 sizes at all dealers and guaranteed in every case.

When Doctors' Treatment Failed this Severe Case was Entirely Cured by
DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Another interesting case of liver derangements and stomach trouble is that described in this letter:

Mrs. James Monteith, Saurin, Simcoe county, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for liver complaint, biliousness and terrible sick headaches, and have found that they are more effective than any treatment I ever tried. They cleanse the system thoroughly, remove the cause of pains and aches and make you feel fresh and strong again. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are also excellent for stomach troubles."

By means of their direct and specific action on the liver—causing a healthful flow of bile—they regulate and enliven the action of the bowels and ensure good digestion in the intestines. At the same time they stimulate the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

Formality in Offices.
 "Did you ever stop to think of the great increase in the formality now observed in legal, financial and other offices? A few years ago when you wanted to see your lawyer you simply walked right into his office," said a native of Philadelphia, now growing old. "Nowadays you must send in your card and wait to learn whether or not the lawyer is at liberty to see you. Banks, too, have adopted similar arrangements. Perhaps some recent lions do bomb throwing may have influenced them. Doctors employ uniformed servants to guard them against intrusion during office hours."—Philadelphia Record.

RECORD MIRAL NACE

Equipped with the improved Record
ular Grate—the most perfect fur-grate on the market. Of the four lar grate bars, each bar is operated use of a handle applied to either two centre bars. To remove this after shaking is impossible until ate bar has been returned to its original position, flat and in place, without any of the coals sticking up. The result is that the bars are always flat under the fire and that it is impossible for lumps of coal to drop through and be wasted. The Record Triangular Grate can be entirely removed from without without lying on stomach or bothering with a light. 104

Why is "The BEST always the CHEAPEST"?

Because it pays the largest dividend on the amount invested.

Action in the field decides generalship.

After your milking is done in the morning don't make the little daughter of twelve or fifteen miss school by staying at home to turn that old cream separator. What is a few dollars invested in value received compared with the comfort derived from giving your children an education? Remember life is fleeting.

Buy a Separator that runs by steam--The Famous Sharples Turbine.

You can see one running in our office. It can be turned into a feed cooker as well.

Farmers, get into and stay into the dairy business. Your cream checks are better to pay your bills with than giving your note, and more easily obtained than paying your note.

Don't give up the farm. Far better to content yourself there than move into Lacombe where there are so many By-Laws to contend with--webs woven by the brains of the votaries of learning.

We are closing out some Canton brush breaking plows at cost. Also Rock Island gang stubble plows. See us for bargains in all lines, from the Port Huron threshing machinery to a wheelbarrow, buggies, wagons, John Deere plows, Frost & Wood binders and mowers, and the Shontz Ideal Giant Mower,--do not buy till you see it.

Big Fire at Claresholm.

Alberton, Aug. 5.--There was a big conflagration at Claresholm early this morning, involving the total destruction of the flour mill, elevator and electric light plant, owned by the Claresholm Lighting, Milling & Elevator Company, Limited.

The buildings are situated close to the railroad, and the flames extended to the telegraph poles, which were burned down for a quarter of a mile. In consequence of this, the Alberton was able to obtain only meager details of the disaster.

The flames were first noticed by the crew of a freight train, which drew into town about half-past two. At that time the flames had gained considerable headway, and not long afterwards they burst from all parts of the buildings, licking up the framework as if it were match wood. Dense clouds of smoke belched forth with the flames, until it was seen that all the buildings were speedily doomed.

Unfortunately there was no water with which to check the progress of the flames and there was nothing left to do but to watch them complete their deadly work. Last year the town voted $5,000 to pipe water through the principal streets for domestic and fire protection. As there was no water on hand to fight the fire this morning, however, the scheme has apparently not yet been completed.

Claresholm is situated 82 miles south of Calgary, and 26 miles north of Macleod. It is a prosperous ranching and farming district, just east of the Porcupine hills, and a stock shipping point.

THE EXPERIMENTAL FARM.

Last Saturday the Editor visited the Experimental Farm, and was shown around by the genial superintendent Mr. G. H. Hutton.

The farm is a busy place at present. A large house is being erected for a residence for the superintendent, with the exception of the front rooms, which will be devoted to office rooms.

A roomy cottage for the use of farm help is practically completed.

A big barn is under construction. It is on concrete foundation, 40 by 70 feet and 40 feet from the ground to the peak. In addition to providing stabling for the stock there will be commodious rooms for the necessary work shops on the ground floor. There will be ample room for storage of hay and grain above.

For the first season an excellent showing is made in experimental work.

There are 21 plots of spring wheat, 31 of oats, 28 of barley, 20 of corn, 20 of field peas, 15 of potatoes, 28 of turnips, mangels, carrots and sugar beets.

All of the above are looking good. Some of the barley is ripe enough that it would do to cut now. The wheat and oats are nicely filled out and give assurance of a large yield. The experiments in corn have already gone far enough to show that it can be made a very profitable fodder crop in this part of Alberta, and Mr. Hutton feels confident that in the future he will be able to show that corn can be successfully matured here.

We also saw promising plots of red clover and alfalfa, the latter having received two cuttings already this season. Part of the alfalfa had been treated to inoculation and part left without. There is a noticeable difference between the two portions of the plot.

Several acres are given over to experiments in trees. In fruit trees there are apple, cherry, and plum. Among the ornamental trees we noticed hard maple, oak, elm, cottonwood, and the inevitable "Manitoba Maple". Experiments in small fruits are also in evidence. Taking into consideration the long journey to which these trees and shrubs were necessarily subjected they are looking very good.

Mr. Hutton has good reason to feel proud of the showing this farm is making in its first year.
